COME AND SEE US.
Milwaukee, June 25, 1854.
The Republican State Central Committee has opened convention and commissary headquarters on Wisconsin street, near the post-office, in Milwaukee. All republicans, and especially those of our own state, are cordially invited to call when in the city. Many of the leading journals of the country, will be kept on file. Come and see us. H. A. TAYLOR, Cur.

C. PARKS, Sec.

The war cry of the democrats: "Don't press us too hard."

The oldest inhabitant never saw a brighter republican campaign.

Mr. Cleveland is real good to say that he doesn't want but one term.

There are a good many sorry democrats in this sorry democratic campaign.

The republican tornado has only begun. Carry the news to Chairman Burnum.

The democrats grow purple when they find that campaign mud will not stick to Blaine.

The reason why the democrats find so much fault with Blaine's grammar is that it hurt in a campaign.

In one thing Cleveland and St. John are alike. They have the least strength where they are best known.

It is so easy for Cleveland, why doesn't Colonel Vilas accept that "walk over" nomination for governor?

The more the mud sticks to Cleveland, the more Mr. Beemer is determined to stick to the democratic candidate.

Butler is a great laborer reformer. He pays his men $1.25 a day and expects them to be contented and get rich.

When you meet a democrat a friend don't mention the campaign. Talk about the weather, and he'll keep his temper.

A Michigan justice of the peace has published this card: "Marriages performed at all hours of day and night."

What a pleasant thing it is to have woods that a democratic candidate may find a retreat there in a stormy campaign.

In view of the great number of democrats leaving their party, a suitable companion song would be, "One by one the roses fall."

Pulmonary consumption is the cause of one death in twelve in New York, and the cause is laid to bad ventilated school rooms. Very likely correct.

A great many wonder why Hendricks didn't write a longer letter. But a man who accepts a small thing cannot expect to write a long letter in accepting it. It wouldn't look well.

With Cleveland in the woods and the democrats in a half dreamy condition, they are not certain whether the campaign on their side is open or not. It looks as if they were not going to have any campaign this year.

What has become of the grand issue of '76? The democrats seem to have lost that drop as quickly as they did the moral issue. Whenever they think of the "friend of '76," the Merory forces stand before their eyes, and what can they do but skulk?

One of the candidates on the democratic electoral ticket in Maine, pledges himself to vote for Blaine, and excuses his refusal to resign on the ground that neither he nor any other democrat has the remotest idea that the Cleveland electoral ticket will be chosen.

A man down in Florida said he recently killed an alligator in whose stomach was found a hen sitting on a dozen eggs. That is the biggest story of the campaign, and on the authority of the New York Tribune the man has been ordered to the national democratic headquarters to serve during the campaign.

Some of the democratic papers are pretty hard on Cleveland for writing such an insignificant letter of acceptance. The democratic press should have some sympathy. A man can't be brilliant and show the stamp of genius when he is writing his political death warrant.

When General Logan passed through the state of New York, it was like a triumphal march, and at every station thousands looked to see. When Hendricks passed through the same state, he was allowed to go without notice. People were kind not to bother him.

At first the democrats began by claiming every state where the German vote was of any importance, but as the days pass away, the democrats are losing faith in one state after another until they have not the confidence that a single northern state will go for Cleveland. The day dreams of the democracy of this campaign have passed.

Mr. William A. Keeney, a democrat

lawyer of Logansport, Indiana, writes to the state democratic committee that he can not support Cleveland and free trade. The sugar-planters in Louisiana, who, of course, are nearly all democrats, will no support Cleveland.

When one looks around and sees the thousands of democrats who are dropping out of the ranks of their party, and joining the republican procession, he will thoroughly understand the gravity of the democratic situation. It is full of disengagement, and the end will bring overwhelming defeat.

THE CHICAGO TIMES.

Its Proprietor's Intellectual Condition to Be Tested.

Another Step in the Grab for a Great Property—Sensational Affidavit of Mrs. Stovey's Other Proceedings.

It has been a cry for some time with the free traders that there is a tax of 90 per cent. on blankets, and therefore the poor are severely taxed when they buy these necessary articles. To show the inaccuracy of the statement, the Dobson Brothers, of Philadelphia, have furnished the prices of blankets under free trade as follows:

150—$2.00, $2.50, $2.25, $3.50, $3.75

$3.00, $3.75, $8.00, $10.00, $12.00.

Then, under a protective tariff, the prices are as follows for the same grade of goods:

188—$1.25, $1.80, $1.62 1/2, $2.35, $2.20

$2.75, $3.50, $5.00, $7.25, $8.50.

It will be seen from this that good blankets are cheaper now than they ever were under democratic free trade. But there is another thing. Ready-made clothing is even cheaper here than in England, that is, those made of the best American woolen cloth. While this is a fact, another fact is equally important, and that is the woolen industry of the United States pays 100 per cent. more wages to its employes than is paid in any country in Europe.

THE BIRTH OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

When the republicans of Maine met at Strong, Franklin county, in that state the other day to celebrate the birth of the republican party, Mr. Blaine was present and made a brief speech in which he said:

"The place and the time where the republican party was first organized, will remain like the birthplace of Homer, a subject of undying disputes. Some cities claimed the honor, and seven states may claim the former. It could hardly be denied that a great thought common to the minds of a million of men would find expression at the same time and places widely separated, but I think it is historically true that the patriotic men who met in this town of Strong in 1854 were the pioneers of the great movement which resulted in the organization of the republican party."

The Strong meeting was held Aug. 7, 1854, and that was the first meeting the republican party had in Maine. But the first meeting of the republicans of Wisconsin took place at Madison, July 13, 1854, when a platform was adopted; and to show that the claim of Strong is absurd, the Milwaukee Sentinel has reproduced the resolutions adopted in Wisconsin and Maine, and it is shown that the Strong resolutions on national questions are a literal verbatim copy of the Wisconsin resolution adopted more than three weeks prior to the holding of the Strong convention. Wisconsin has the proud distinction of being the birth place of the republican party, and not Maine.

The Sentinel says that the Wisconsin resolutions were reported by a committee of which J. A. Sleeper, now of Chicago, was chairman, but they were mainly written by the late Judge Wm. W. Spooner, of Walworth county.

THE GRAVITY OF THE SITUATION.

Republican aggressiveness and democratic dissatisfaction, fill the Cleveland campaign with a good deal of gravity. The democrats try to whistle a lively tune, but the exhibition is too utterly ridiculous, and may have stopped the show altogether.

Over in Dubuque, the Telegraph of that city, the most influential democratic newspaper in Iowa, takes this view of the situation:

"What method the committee will adopt to promote democratic success in the west we do not know; but in view of the admissions of the Buffalo Courier, it would seem that the best way to promote democratic success both east and west would be to secure, if possible, the withdrawal of Mr. Cleveland from the democratic ticket and the substitution for him of a man whose personal record will not require either apology or defense."

Then there is the Maccus (Telegraph), the ablest organ of the democracy in that state, will not suppress its disgust over the trouble that Mr. Cleveland has brought upon the party. It forces the defeat of the party for the plain reason that the man who secured his nomination are not competent to obtain his election. The Telegraph is quite candid as the following editorial paragraph will show:

"The time is past for profitable discussion of the candidacy of Mr. Cleveland. It will not now avail to compare the present condition of the canvass with what it might have been under the leadership of Thurman, Bayard, Randall or other distinguished democratic leaders who had been taught wisdom by service and experience. It will be quite unsafe to disregard the evidences of division and demoralization with which the situation stands."

Mr. Whitaker, president of the Cleveland and Hendricks club of East Chester, New York, has resigned, and supports Blaine and Logan, and makes this significant declaration: "Until the copperheads of 1854 take a back seat in the councils of the democratic party, I, for one, shall act and vote with the party which has no need to apologize for its war record."

Mr. William A. Keeney, a democrat

lawyer of Logansport, Indiana, writes to the state democratic committee that he can not support Cleveland and free trade. The sugar-planters in Louisiana, who, of course, are nearly all democrats, will no support Cleveland.

When one looks around and sees the thousands of democrats who are dropping out of the ranks of their party, and joining the republican procession, he will thoroughly understand the gravity of the democratic situation. It is full of disengagement, and the end will bring overwhelming defeat.

IT'S COMIN' YET, FOR A THAT!

Carnegie, the Iron King, on British Politics.

Paragon, Aug. 23.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the American steel king, who has established several Liberal newspapers in England, said that he felt highly honored by the little attack made on him a few days by The St. James Gazette. He denies that the people of Great Britain are satisfied with the present system of government, and says: "I believe that even to-day if a vote by ballot were taken throughout Great Britain and Ireland, a majority would be in favor of electing a chief magistrate, after the death of Queen Victoria. They would favor the sentiment, I know, that hereafter the king of old England should decree equal rights and privileges to all citizens."

Mr. Carnegie's opinion is that England is quite safe, but that the empire and house of St. James would be destroyed if I could, every vestige of privilege throughout the world. If I could give to every workingman in Great Britain equality in political privilege with any king, prince, duke or lord, I would be willing to go far and spend much. In the meantime I console myself with Burns' lines: 'It's coming yet, for a that.' Mr. Carnegie said he considers Ireland's rebellion against English justice, but thinks the Irish are mistaken in holding the English people responsible. The house of lords, he says, is to blame.

CHILDRREN OF GOD

Who Practice Rather Stamp Them as Satan's Progeny.

Circus, Aug. 23.—For some time past the neighbors in the vicinity of 350 Flourney street have been suspicious of the conduct of the occupants of the house. They observed that quite a number of small, black coffins were carried away. The case was placed in the hands of an officer of the humane society who found a most revolting state of affairs. Twelve children were in the house. They had been tortured by being tied to bedposts and whipped, and otherwise bodily maltreated. It is said that the children were sent to the house to be brought up in the religion of Mrs. Stovey's unorthodox dispensement, and not properly suited to his present position until superseded by a competent person, legally appointed by the court; that he never entered into any agreement with Mrs. Stovey regarding the employment of Benjamin Lamb as the recognized representative of that lady. Mr. Lamb being without any business experience and under no obligation to the Stovey children, began, and while so doing, to tell the relatives of Mr. Stovey of the latter's condition, because it was impossible to let things go on in their present state, but still that the paper had become more valuable than ever under defendant's exclusive business control. The defendant closes with the avowment that Mrs. Stovey's interest in the paper lies solely in an annuity which had been settled upon her before marriage.

A. S. True read affidavits, among the least of which was that of C. W. Patterson, a lawyer of the city, who gave a history of his connection with the Stovey children, and who, in his affidavit, said that he had been tortured by being tied to bedposts and whipped, and otherwise bodily maltreated by Mrs. Stovey.

The judge said that if it should appear that Mr. S. was of sound mind he would appoint a suitable person to act as conservator—one in whose hands all interests would be safe.

The judge also decided that the legal relatives of Mr. S. be allowed to come in as competitors with the original petitioner, Henry C. Kelly, and also that Mrs. Stovey be admitted. The case was then adjourned until Thursday next.

There were numerous affidavits, among the most important of which was one from C. W. Patterson, business manager of the paper, who gave a history of his connection with the Stovey children, and who, in his affidavit, said that he had been tortured by being tied to bedposts and whipped, and otherwise bodily maltreated by Mrs. Stovey.
